From The Bench

This weekend is Hands On History Days at Montpelier Mansion in Laurel, Maryland. Children and adults alike are given the opportunity to try their hands being a Woodturners Apprentice. Work in a woodturner's shop and help make chairs the old-fashioned way. You'll help turn the legs and spindles on a foot-powered treadle lathe, sand and polish them, and weave the seats. When you're done, you'll get your very own apprentice's contract that you can fill out with a quill pen and ink! On Saturday, the Chesapeake Woodturners will be there doing demonstrations with Temple Blackwood weaving seats. I will be there on Sunday to demonstrate period turning on the treadle lathe. Montpelier Mansion sits on approximately 70 acres of beautiful parkland...a great place for a picnic lunch. Major Thomas Snowden constructed a fine example of Georgian architecture between 1781 and 1785. The mansion, a National Historic Landmark, is operated as a house museum where select rooms have been researched and furnished as they would have appeared from the end of the 18th century until 1830.

IN THE NEWS:

Spring is almost here and we've been watching the tulips come up in the beds in front of the shop. Spring brings not only showers and flowers, but art festivals and craft shows as well. The Loch Raven High School Boosters in Baltimore selected Annapolis Woodworks to participate in their annual Spring Arts & Craft Festival on Saturday, March 15, 2008. We will be prominently featured in the main foyer and WBAL Channel 11 is scheduled to feature select vendors, including Annapolis Woodworks during their Saturday broadcasts.

Class Recap

This was an exciting class with a different turn than the standard Intermediate Class. The consensus was that the platter was preferred over the spindle portion of the class. The wood chosen for the platter was aromatic cedar with a French polish finish. The natural edge bowl in the rear right corner is the thin wall beech that we normally use to focus on tool control

Turning Weekend with Bob Rosand - - - Sept 27 & 28, 2008

Robert's wood turning instruction centers around projects. He is known throughout the wood turning community for his small projects, items that can be made in a relatively short period of time and also sold successfully at local crafts fairs. Some of the items you can expect to make are; Christmas tree ornaments, lidded boxes, ring holders, oil lamps. Basic instruction includes tool selection and sharpening. You can expect to make a small round skew as well as a bent angle tool and receive instruction in its use.

Upcoming Class

Bowback Chair Class on March 17-21, 2008 8:30am – 5:00pm $700

This class is designed to help woodworkers build a family heirloom that will last for generations. Students will learn a great deal including the proper use of hand planes, shaping the seat, steambending, and using a spoke shave and drawknife for making spindles. Participants will also learn how to make a mortise and tenon joint without glue or fasteners that will last for centuries. Sign up now for a fun-filled week!
